

She is the one without whom you feel you are nothing. You forget to breathe when you are with her. She is in every pore of your body - just her. She is the blessing from God that you finally received. She is the serenity of a gentle breeze. All she has to do is just call your name and you walk right into her arms in an instant. You want to pass every day and every night of your life sheltered in her love.

When she is near you, your eyes want nothing else. She is your journey and also the goal of your quest. She is your prayer that has been fulfilled. You are just a falling star without her. You belonged to her in your previous life, and you want to belong to her again. Her eyes meet yours, and you keep awake at nights just remembering her gaze. As you found God in her, your eyes don't want to see anything else!

You see the light of love dancing on her face, and you also feel her fragrance. Your heart is awake every night with that light like Diwali. After finding her and leading her into your heart, everything is clear. All the haze has settled down into the water. She is in every river and every scene. She is truly one in thousands. You pray to God never to be separated from her. In all your prayers, rewards, and love dreams, she is always the one, flowing ever so gently.

When she is near you, your eyes want nothing else.
